

Lubega to lead with cultural, religious leaders

Publication date: Thursday, 17th February, 2011

Samuel Walter Lubega Mukaaku, 42, independent

BORN in 1969, Lubega is one of the founders of the Democratic Party's youth wing of Uganda Young Democrats.

After his diploma in education at Nkozi NTC between 1986 and 1988 he taught biology and chemistry in various schools before joining Makerere University for an agricultural economics degree in 1991.

In 1996, he unsuccessfully attempted to become the MP for Kawempe North. In 2006, Lubega contested for the Busiro East parliamentary seat and he lost.

During his stay at the University of Wales in UK where he read a Masters Degree in Social Development he was voted the DP chairman for the UK chapter.

On return in 2009 he aspired for the DP presidency but boycotted the controversial Mbale Delegates' Conference that elected Nobert Mao. He decided to stand as an independent candidate.

What he has promised:

- I Establish a federal system of governance
- I Tougher laws to stamp out corruption
- I Reduce taxes on essential commodities
- I Allocate biggest percentage of budget to agriculture
- I Re-instate presidential term limits

Lubega is a stand alone
