

TRUTH EVERYDAY

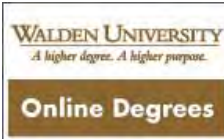

Daily Monitor

Thursday
July 12, 2012

one Africa, one rate!

call across all of Africa* at a flat rate of 10/- per sec and stand to win a fully paid trip for two every week to Mombasa

Master of Business Administration (MBA)
Dr. of Business Administration (DBA)
PhD in Management

NATIONAL

Museveni names Irene Mulyagonja new IGG

High Court judge Irene Mulyagonja Kakooza

By RICHARD WANAMBWA (email the author)
Posted Friday, April 13 2012 at 00:00

IN SUMMARY

Who is Mulyagonja?

Ms Irene Mulyagonja Kakooza, the new Inspector General of Government, was born in 1963. She did both her 'O' and A-level education in Mt. St. Mary's Namagunga before joining Makerere University where she studied Law. She later did her Masters in Zimbabwe. She worked with Mulira & Company Advocates before moving to her own firm. Married to Mr JB Kakooza, the mother of three was appointed judge of the High Court four years ago. She becomes the fourth IGG since 1986.

President Museveni has named High Court judge Irene Mulyagonja Kakooza the new Inspector General of Government.

A source in State House, who preferred not to be named because the communication was yet to be made official, told this newspaper last night that the President had already signed the instrument appointing Justice Mulyagonja.

The Constitutional Court recently ruled that acting IGG Raphael Baku was holding the position illegally and froze the office. This followed a petition by ministers Sam Kutesa, John Nasasira and Mwesigwa Rukutana challenging the powers of Mr Baku to prosecute them for offences related to Chogm.

The judges held that the office was not constitutionally constituted and said Mr Baku could not conduct prosecutions. It was not clear last night what Mr Baku's fate was.

rwanambwa@ug.nationmedia.com