The Masters programme in Journalism at Makerere University is back on the university list of master courses for the academic year 2012/2013.

The course which was suspended a year ago over what the university said was lack of teaching staff is back because the department has now recruited staff

The staff list to teach the reinstated programme will include Dr. Patricia Litho, Dr. William Tayeebwa and Associate Professor Gorett Nasanga

The programme coordinator, Marjorie Kyomuhendo says that they have resumed with a new strategy of building internal capacity through sponsoring teaching assistants to upgrade.

Dr. George Lugalabi and Associate Professor Monica Chibita, who now heads the Mass Communication department at Uganda Christian University are some of the lecturers who led to the suspension of the programme when they left some time back.
