

New Voices in Global Health 2015

Overview

The New Voices in Global Health (NVGH) initiative promotes the active participation of young scientists in the World Health Summit (WHS). It is supported by the M8 Alliance of Academic Health Centers, Universities and National Academies. The NVGH is aimed at empowering research, policy and advocacy initiatives among future leaders in global health, who are invited to send in abstracts of their scientific work and ideas.

Selected candidates will present their work in a special poster exhibition, thus playing an active role in the WHS. Abstracts will be published digitally at www.worldhealthsummit.org.

The Selection Process:

➤ Step 1: Choose your topic

Issues addressed must be relevant, reflect current challenges and show originality in the overall field of Public and Global Health. Topics linked to the Summit's main themes are of particular interest:

- Public and Global Health
- Translational Science
- Health in the Post-2015 Development Agenda
- Antimicrobial Resistance
- Ebola: Assessment, Treatment and Prevention
- Medical Education
- Digital Health

➤ Step 2: Application

Apply before July 31, 2015, via email to science@worldhealthsummit.org. Applications must consist of:

- Thematic abstract of up to 500 words, written in English. It should not contain references, figures or tables.
- Brief CV with basic contact details

➤ Step 3: Selection

The M8 Alliance Executive Committee will identify the best applications based on international academic standards. Chosen candidates will be notified by mid-August 2015.

➤ Step 4: Design your poster

Accepted candidates will have to design posters in DIN A1 format (594 mm x 841 mm) / (23.4 inches x 33.1 inches) based on their abstracts. The WHS will print the posters and cover related costs.

Printable PDF files must be sent in by mid-September 2015.
