8.5. TIPS ON LEARNING METHODS

Lecturers use a wide variety of teaching methods in addition to the standard lecture and practical formats. E-learning, small group seminars, sometimes known as tutorials offer opportunity for discussion of issues raised in lectures and may or may not have a formal agenda notified in advance.

You will learn most from seminars if you have prepared for them by reading the relevant books or journal articles beforehand, but the informal exchange of ideas afforded by the small group learning environment is often useful and stimulating, even if preparation time is restricted.

True tutorials, a student and member of academic staff discussing a topic 'one-to-one' are most often relevant in third year project work, when close supervision of more advanced and creative work is called for.

8.5.1. NOTE TAKING

Taking lecture notes is one of the modes of learning in the majority of programmes. It is often tempting to adopt one of two extremes; neither is appropriate at University level. Some diligent students attempt to write a complete transcript of the lectures.

Not only is this very tiring and practically impossible unless one is a stenographer, it also prevents the writer from thinking about what is said.

8.5.2. SELF DIRECTED STUDY

In all your courses, periods not timetabled for lectures are for 'private study'. You may use the time to read further on the topics covered in lectures using the recommended textbooks.

You will often be given references to journal articles, and reading these will extend your understanding of the subject. As essays are set, you will certainly need to explore many different information sources to produce an assignment which demonstrates that you have 'read around' the topic and are not just regurgitating lecture notes.

to find information Learning for yourself is one of the most important elements of University education and an invaluable transferable skill which will always be useful to you. The number of resources where vou can find information has expanded enormously in recent years with rapid explosion in electronic information

Traditional printed text books, reference books, theses and journals have been supplemented with electronic versions. Much information, reference such official publications and ลร statistics, are now often also available on the web.

Internet search engines (such as Google or Alta Vista) can be used to find information on just about anything, but must be treated with great caution, as the quality of the information on the web is very variable.

Where the cause is incapacitating illness, a student must present a University Hospital Medical Statement Form. In other cases, including severe domestic affliction, adequate documentation must be provided to substantiate the reason for an absence.

In the case of an approved application for the deferred final examination, the Dean or Principal of the student's College/ School will inform the Head of Department responsible for the course of the approved deferred examination. The Department will then notify the lecturer concerned.

A deferred examination will not be approved if a student hasn't been in regular attendance in a course, where attendance means having completed less than half of the assigned work.

Deferred examination will be inclined in a student's maximum Semester load. A student with two or more deferred examinations outstanding from a previous semester maybe required to reduce the number of courses in which they are registered in order to accommodate deferred courses from previous semesters.

The grades obtained from a deferred examination shall not be categorized as retake because the assessment(s) is for the first time.

A student shall be required to pay appropriate fee for deferred examination and payment shall normally be made at the beginning of the semester.

When is a student Discontinued/ Dismissed?

When a student accumulates three consecutive probations based on CGPA of less than 2.00 for three (3) consecutive semesters, he/she shall be discontinued.

A student who has failed to obtain at least the Pass Mark (50%) during the third Assessment in the same course or courses he/she had retaken shall be discontinued from his/her studies at the university.

A student who has overstayed himself or herself in indiscriminate hooliganism.

Pass Mark and Earning of Credits in a Course.

Each student shall earn credits for all the courses specified in the Programme Load for graduation. A Credit shall be earned when a student has obtained at least the undergraduate programmes Pass mark (50%) in each course he/she had been assessed in.

In other-wards, no credit shall be earned in a course in which a student has failed the assessment. If you have achieved 50% in a course you will not be asked to retake that course.

Graduand

A student who has completed the requirements of a degree but has not yet graduated.

Graduation

A ceremony where graduands receive their degrees.

Graduate

A graduate person is one who has been awarded a university degree.

What do the marks mean?

The range of marks is probably a lot smaller than you are used to from school. The overall marks a candidate obtains in each Course he/she offered shall be graded out of a maximum of One Hundred (100) Marks and assigned appropriate Letter Grades and Grade Points.

MARKS	LETTER GRADE	GRADE POINT	INTERPRETATION
90-100	A+	5	Exceptional
80-89	А	5	Excellent
75-79	B+	4.5	Very Good
70-74	В	4	Good
65-69	C+	3.5	Fairy Good
60-64	С	3	Fair
55-59	D+	2.5	Pass

The following list is to give you an idea of what the marks mean.

50-54	D	2	Marginal Pass
45-49	E	1.5	Marginal Fail
40-44	E-	1	Clear Fail
Below 40	F	0	Bad Fail

Grade Point Average Terminology

Credit Unit- Hours assigned a course, this is the number listed in both the schedule of classes and the catalog and is usually 2 to 5 credits. Grade point - the numerical value assigned to a grade;

A+=5 points

A = 5 points

B+ = 4.5 points

B = 4 points

C+ = 3.5 points

C = 3 points

D+ = 2.5 points

D = 2.0 points

F = 0 points

Grade points - Number of credit units for a course times the grade value

Earned credits - Credit hours that you passed (with a grade of D or higher).

What can I do if I fail my semester examinations?

Don't despair – you can still recover the following year! Such a student shall be allowed to progress to the next semester/ academic year but shall still retake the courses failed when next offered.

Final Year Results

Officially, in the final year you get a classified degree. For purposes of the classification of Degrees, Diplomas and Certificates (where applicable) the Cumulative Grade Point Average (CPGA) for the various Classes shall be as indicated below:

	CLASS	CGPA
a.	First Class	4.40 - 5.00
b.	Second Class – Upper Division	3.60 - 4.39
c.	Second Class – Lower Division	2.80 - 3.59
d.	Pass	2.0 - 2.79

Lee Morris

I didn't fail, but can I re-sit anyway to improve my marks?

Yes! A student may retake a Course or Courses when next offered again in order to improve his/her Pass Grade(s) if the Pass Grades got at the first assessment in the Course or Courses were low. A student who fails to attain higher marks after retaking to improve, the examination results of the first sitting are recorded on the transcript and shall not be recorded as a Retake.

I don't believe my exam marks!

Every year we receive complaints from students who believe that their mark for one or more examination papers is too low. We perform, lots of checks and the chances of a mark being significantly in error are tiny. The most common reasons are because the question has not been answered in sufficient depth or some of the required points in the answer have been missed. Answers are sometimes self-contradictory or illegible or the main point of the question has been missed.

How do I appeal?

The decisions of the examiners regarding passes, fails and degree classification are taken with extreme care and attention, with one of the primary considerations being fairness to all students. Once these decisions are made, the opportunities to change them are limited; in particular, students do not have the right to have their papers remarked simply because the published mark doesn't match their expectation. Only if we are presented with primafacie evidence that a student has been unfairly treated will we even consider a change of decision.

Should you feel that the department has not treated you fairly, every student has the right to use the University's Examinations appeal procedure. Candidates shall make their requests in writing clearly specifying the grounds upon which the appeal is being made including, but not limited to the following:

- i. That there exists or existed circumstances affecting the student's performance of which the Examiners had not been made aware when their decision was take
- ii. That there were procedural irregularities in the examination process.
- iii. That there is evidence of prejudice or bias or inadequate assessment on the part of one or more of the examiners.

Note that disagreement with the academic judgment examiners is not a ground for appeal.

NB: The appeal must be made within a period of 30 days after the display of examination results.

Academic misconduct

Freshers are strongly warned against any form of Examination Malpractices/ irregularities. It shall be an offence for a student/ candidate to get involved in examination malpractices. Misconduct includes but not limited to the following actions:

Cheating is defined as any illegitimate behaviour designed to deceive those setting, administering and marking the assessment. Cheating in a university assessment is a very serious academic offence, which may lead ultimately to expulsion from the university. Cheating can take one of a number of forms including;

- (i). Taking into exam venue, or possessing whilst in the room, any books, notes or other material which has/have not been authorized.
- (ii). Writing notes on yourself or having notes on your person.
- (iii). Having notes written in your identity documents or authorized examination materials e.g. logarithm table.
- (iv). Accessing information written or stored on electronic equipment.
- (v). Copying from another student in the examination.
- (vi). Aiding or attempting to aid another candidate, or obtaining or attempting to obtaining or attempting to obtain aid from another candidate.
- (vii). Passing yourself off as another.
- (viii).Such repeated behaviour as may in the view of the invigilator prejudice the performance of other candidates.
- (ix). The use of unauthorized books, notes, electronic aids or other materials in an examination.
- (x). Obtaining an examination paper ahead of its authorized release.

Collusion, i.e., the representation of another's work or ideas as one's own without appropriate acknowledgment or referencing, where the owner of the work knows of the situation and both work towards the deceit of a third party (while in plagiarism the owner of the work does not knowingly allow the use of his or her work).

Acting dishonestly in anyway including fabrication of data, whether before, during or after an examination or other assessment so as either obtain or offer to others an unfair advantage in that examination or assessment.

Plagiarism this is the act of representing another's work or ideas as one's own without appropriate acknowledgment or referencing.

There are three main types of plagiarism which could occur within all modes of assessment (including examinations).

- (i). Direct copying of text from a book, articles, fellow student's essay, handout, thesis, web pages or other source without proper acknowledgment.
- (ii). Claiming individual ideas derived from a book, article etc. as one's own, and incorporating them into one's work without acknowledging the source of these ideas.
- (iii). Overly depending on the work of one or more others without proper acknowledgment of the source, by constructing an essay, project etc. by extracting large sections of the text from another source, and merely linking these together with a few of one's own sentences. (Colleges/ schools may extend these definitions for specific subject areas and provide students with examples as appropriate).

The correct referencing system for making quotations explicit and acknowledging sources shall be available through personal tutors or supervisors, specific tutorial sessions.

Forget about the consequences of failure. Failure is only a temporary change in direction to set you straight for your next success.
